Advance sales break records

COMMERCIAL BREAK
By Mark Austin

IT is always difficult to remember precisely, but current pre-season sales do appear to be more buoyant than this time last year.

One has to assume this is down to a combination of factors which must include: a) the team being unbeaten at Adams Park in the league since Boxing Day last year; b) a more entertaining style of play than under the previous manager; c) fans now know how good the view is from the ServisPak Stand and that the facilities at Adams Park are the envy of most clubs in the Nationwide League; d) manager John Gregory is extremely popular and the fans believe in him; e) the fixture list includes more local derbies than last season.

Obviously there must be other reasons, but the "feel good" factor has certainly returned. I am delighted to say that all the larger existing sponsors have not only renewed their contracts, but also on the whole increased their level of support for the club. However not all advertisers and sponsors have yet been approached, so there is still a long way to go before we can achieve budget.

Once the season starts, the results will have a big say in how we will fare financially, particularly in the cups. Fulham in the Coca-Cola is a good draw financially and for the fans, but it will only be really good if we can beat them over two legs, and progress to the lucrative second round, when most of the Premiership clubs come in. It is a "rigged" draw then with us being guaranteed at least a first division club.

Wanderers have already surpassed the £298,000 taken on season tickets throughout the 1996/97 season, having already sold over £300,000 in advanced season ticket sales with seven days to go before the deadline for the super discounted season tickets. The original deadline was Friday July 4, but this has been extended until 5pm on Saturday July 12. Hopefully this season will see an all time record high for season ticket sales.

Feeling good: The feel good factor is helping Mark Austin and his commercial team achieve record season ticket sales

The biggest problem commercially this season is the early start. The Aston Villa game on Friday, July 18 does not give us long to sell all the matchday programme adverts, obtain all the artwork, disks and filmwork and pre-print the advert pages for the season. Since being at Adams Park Wanderers have always pre-printed the adverts which saves time and money, allowing the printers to concentrate on producing as up-to-date matchday programme information as possible. Advertisers rightly want to have their advert in as many programmes as possible and ground board advertisers want their board up for as many matches as achievable, so there is also extra pressure on the signwriters to get the pitch boards up-dated in time for the first match.

With the manager on holiday last week and all the players away, it has been nice and quiet. As my office is next door to the gym, I usually get Bruce Springstein, Guns and Roses and Deep Purple played loudly on the club megablaster next door, which makes life interesting.

All the players start back on Tuesday July 1, when the tranquillity and peace of recent weeks will be shattered. Trust me when I tell you that John Gregory not only likes his music, but he likes it loud!!

Frankly John and the players can play it as loud as they like as long as they keep the unbeaten home record going and win a few more away matches. At the end of the day, we are commercially reliant on them to produce the results that will bring in the pennies to pay them and hopefully extra dosh to spend on new players and upgrading Adams Park.

The last six home league matches saw an average attendance of 6,282 which was a marked increase on the 4,572 1995/96 league average under Alan Smith.

Well done John and Richard, let's hope they can keep the current momentum going so we can beat 5,856 the average league attendance record of 1994/95 set during Martin O'Neill's last season at Adams Park.

Hutch goes Stars-ky eyed in memory lane

By Alan Hutchinson

BEFORE our visit to Plymouth last January, a friend handed me a copy of the South Bucks Free Press dated Friday, November 15, 1907 after Wanderers had lost 8-0 to Swindon reserves at Loakes Park in Division Two of the Southern League.

A crowd of 800 had seen the Blues play their fifth league game of the season and lose for the fifth time.

At the foot of the match report was this ode to the Blues:

"Poor old Wycombe Wanderers; never a heartening pat on the back; for you are the black sheep of the fold; never a hand lifted to help you a bit; but many upraised holding a stick; ready to strike you down should you rise; or your progress stop with a brick; poor little wycombe wanderers the target for trouble and woe; keep a good heart and go bravely along; it is not always night, as you know."

It seemed appropriate at the time, finding ourselves as we were prior to the Plymouth game, bottom of Division Two.

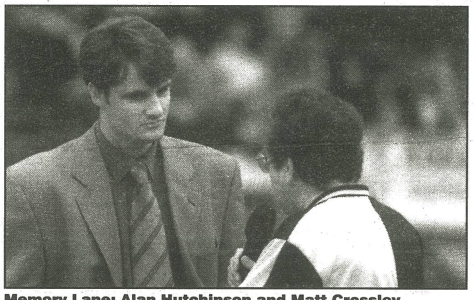

The 1906-07 season turned out to be the worst in the club's history at the time and the crowds stayed away. Just 40 people watched Division Two Champions Southend United at Loakes Park.

I've also obtained a copy of the Berks and Bucks FA handbook for 1895-96, Wanderers first season at Loakes Park and their second as a senior club in county membership. It makes interesting reading. The competition was split into Bucks and Berks sections with the winners contesting the final.

Looking through the rules very little seems to have changed. The number of clubs in membership both as juniors and seniors was very small. Further on, reference is made to George Steens of Wycombe Wanderers becoming the first player from the club to make a senior appearance for the county side in 1895 season.

The first round draw for 1895-96 sent Wycombe to Chesham where they lost 2-1, the following season Wanderers reached the final for the first time and lost to Marlow 2-1.

Over the last 20 years the County Senior Cup has become a hinderance within a crowded league programme. Gone are the days when all the top amateurs in Berks and Bucks set out to win it every season. Now Wycombe Wanderers are an established Football League club it has become a backseat priority. The 1896-97 season was also the first that Wycombe had entered a league.

Memory Lane: Alan Hutchinson and Matt Crossley

It was a big gamble joining Division Two of the Southern League with away games at Bristol and Southampton. Crowds were growing after the success of the previous season in the FA Amateur Cup and Berks and Bucks Cup and the club wanted to give fans more attractive games.

Rumours circulated that Wycombe were turning professional but the club decided against it and signed 26 players on league forms. It was also the season that Wycombe issued a free teamsheet, available on the morning of the game with line ups, fixtures and results.

Tribute to Blues' microphone man

ALAN Hutchinson, can always be heard by Ringing the Blues on 0891 446855. The 50p per minute line is worth every penny.

We believe we have the finest Clubcall line in the League, thanks to Alan, who updates it every day. He reports from all away matches, including Capital League and youth team cup matches

But that's just the start of his work. As press officer he is responsible for releasing team news to the press and overseeing press releases. He also controls the media on matchdays, issuing them with press passes if they can convince him they are genuine. Many get rejected by our great detective, who can spot bogus punters a mile off.

Last season Hutchy took on the role of matchday presenter, bringing the club closer to the fans. He also steps in as substitute tannoy announcer and as M.C. at the Sportsmans Dinners when Alan Parry is otherwise engaged.

Hutchy's newest venture for the club has come through Thames Valley Television, which is moving into High Wycombe over the next few months. Alan hosts a two hour Wanderers show on the cable chanell every Thursday night from 8pm until 10pm. Fans in Wycombe will soon be able to tune into this excellent new media avenue opened up by Alan.

He used to host the popular Sportsline programme on eleven SEVENTY AM until its demise when they stopped covering away matches.

The station says it will resume coverage next season if they can get a sponsor. Let's hope they succeed and we hear Alan's excited commentary from away grounds again.

WHENEVER there is a sporting event of note in this country, or a British team makes us proud abroad, then sales trends are spotted at SPORTSCENE.

For example Wimbledon fever will attract a whole new crowd to tennis during the next few weeks.

And where better to go for the necessary equipment than Sportscene, in Beaconsfield, which carries one of the biggest and best stocks of tennis racquets in the region.

This family business, run by Barry Stevens, specialises in all racquets - tennis, squash and badminton - with stock models from eight leading manfacturers. They also have a 24-hour re-stringing service.

Barry says that anyone new to tennis should take several things into account when choosing the right racquet, and he is happy to advise customers. Length, weight, balance and grip size all have to be considered.

A certain successful run for the English cricket team has also perked up interest in this game, so luckily Sportscene sells equipment for a whole range of sports including cricket,football, swimming, table tennis, darts, bowls and hockey.

They carry an extensive range of sports clothing and footwear with all the well known brand names, Nike, Fred Perry, Wilson, Adidas, Reebok, K.Swiss and Sergio Tacchini.

The famous Wanderers quarters are coming home

Quarterback: At last it's official this is the new kit that Wycombe Wanderers will be wearing next season by popular demand

Fan power wins the day as Blues goes back to quarters

WANDERERS will launch their brand new sky and navy quartered home kit at the Wanderers In Town clubshop in the Octagon Shopping Centre on Wednesday, July 2.

Manager John Gregory, his assistant Richard Hill and the Blues players will be at the store from 3.30pm until 5pm for the official launch where there will be plenty of giveaways for fans.

Fan power has helped to bring the quartered design back for the 1997/98 season.

And this time the club really does intend to stick to its traditional two year policy for both the new Mizuno home and away shirt.

Earlier in the year the club carried out a detailed supporters survey and. 98 per cent voted to support John Gregory's wish to return to quarters.

The new away kit, launched against Bristol City on May 3, has already proved to be the most popular away shirt ever sold in the club shop. The navy and yellow quartered design was the one chosen by most fans so the club should not be surprised it is selling so well.

The previous stripey home strip designed under previous manager Alan Smith's supervision sold quite well, with about 1,500 being purchased over the course of last season. The all-white Mizuno away strip is being retained for the 1997/98 season in addition to the new away strip, and in line with the club's two year policy.

The club's Supporters Survey asked fans: Would you support a move back to our traditional Sky and Navy Quarters? and were overwhelmed by the response. Of the 328 who replied 98 per cent said Yes and two 2 per cent No.

Of the two per cent the majority were not against going back to quarters, but wanted it to be after next season. However from the hundreds of written comments received and accompanying letters it was clear that most fans did not want to wait until the 1998/99 season.

The club managed to gain Mizuno's agreement and were then left with two other main problems. The first was to take into account those who had purchased a stripey shirt and the second was what to do with the large amount of stripey fabric left, which had been printed up by Mizuno assuming the shirt would run for two years.

The survey gave everyone who had bought a stripey shirt, the chance to have their say and most wanted quarters back ahead of schedule. The excess fabric was more of a problem. Some has been shifted, but still a large amount remains.

The club has decided to make it up into cut price kits for local parks teams, without any logos or VERCO on the front.

The parks kits are available in the sky and navy striped quarters or in the white pin striped away colours.

A full squad of 16 complete kits will cost £500 plus VAT.

A name and numbering service is also available at a reduced rate.

Kit is launched with fiver offer

WYCOMBE Wanderers Football Club is offering fans the chance of a £5 club shop gift voucher when they buy the new Mizuno navy and sky quartered home shirt.

The kit will be released on Wednesday, July 2 at Wanderers In Town in the Octagon Shopping Centre at 3.30pm with John Gregory and the Wycombe Wanderers players being present.

The football club will issue a £5 gift voucher to every customer who purchases any size of the new home shirt if 4,000 shirts are sold between the launch date and Easter 1998.

When that sales target is reached any customer who purchased the shirt, which is available from either Wanderers In Town during shop hours or the Cornerflag club shop at Adams Park which is open two hours before kick off on match days, is asked to retain the relevant receipt.

When the Blues reach the magic 4,000 sales figure that receipt will be redeemable for a £5 club shop voucher.

Running sales totals will be issued in every Saturday home matchday programme throughout the 1997/98 season up until the Easter deadline.

The club is urging all fans to support John Gregory who wanted to see the reintroduction of the navy and sky quartered design by purchasing the shirt or kit.

And if the sales target is reached and everyone trades in their receipt for a voucher the Blues will be handing £20,000 worth of clubshop vouchers back to the fans.

Discount for stripey kit holders

AS a gesture of goodwill the Blues are offering a free £5 clubshop voucher for every fan who bought a stripey home shirt and who decides to update it for the new quartered shirt.

The club will offer any fan who buys a child's or adult's new Mizuno home sky and navy quartered shirt a £5 clubshop voucher if they produce a Mizuno home stripey shirt with the collar label intact.

Supporters will have the choice of retaining their stripey shirt, once the Mizuno label has been removed, or handing it over to Wanderers in Town staff who will collect them for Aid to Albania.

Derek Vere the Managing Director of Blues' official club sponsors Verco Office Furniture Ltd will ensure that all shirts donated to Aid to Albania will be put to good use.

Any supporters who were given a free shirt without a label, do not qualify for this special offer, although they are welcome to hand in their shirts for the Aid to Albania appeal.

The £5 vouchers will be given to every qualifying stripey 1996/97 Mizuno Wycombe Wanderers home shirt holder immediately upon the purchase of a new shirt.

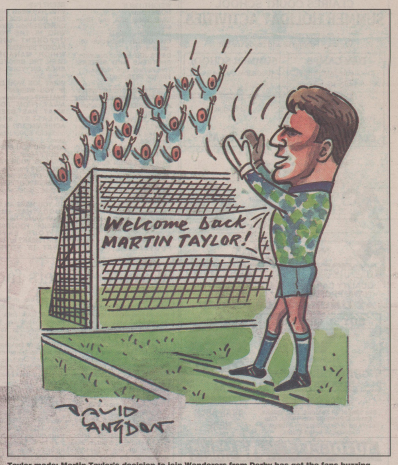

This special offer ends at 5.30pm on Saturday, August 30.

Robertsons are stadium sponsors

ROBERTSONS Estate Agents of Crendon Street, High Wycombe are Wanderers first official stadium sponsors after signing a three-year contract.

The deal will be launched before Wanderers first home league game against Northampton on August 16. Robertsons name and logo will appear around the ground, on tickets and in the programme.

Simon Robertson said "All of us at Robertsons support the Blues and hope that over the next three years Wanderers will continue their tremendous run of success."

Transfer targets face twenty questions grilling

DIRECTOR Brian Lee takes a behind the scenes look at the pre-season transfer market.

He writes: There are many questions to ask when signing a new player, such as does he have the drive, ambition and desire to play for the club? What motivates him? Is it a career move or has he already peaked at a higher level? Why does he want to move? Is he fit? How many games can he play in a season? How many clubs has he played for and why has he moved? Where does he live, has he relocated before? What is his domestic life like, is his wife supportive, are there school problems with children?

If he has moved before, you will want to know how long it took him to settle down? What are his references like? Is he reliable, punctual? Does he travel well? Does he play as well away from home as he does at home? Does he listen to instructions? Can he lift players or does he need to be lifted? Do you need to change him and his abilities to accommodate him in your side?

When you have answered the above, financial negotiations begin and there are more questions to be asked.

Is he a long-term investment or a short-term signing? Will the club be able to recoup its money if he fails to produce the form you anticipated?

You may think this a negative approach but those supplying the finances are entitled to know.

In the transfer market, rarely is the first offer accepted, it is often followed by constant negotiations over a period of time, until an agreement is reached. Today there are also many sell-on clauses attached to a signing, that seem harmless and an incentive at the time, but hurt later.

Once all that has been agreed, you start discussing personal terms. Possibly the most important aspect nowadays is to reward team and personal results.

Now all this is assuming the player wants to join us, but what happens if you have to persuade him? We like to think that we are a progressive club with excellent facilities and good supporters but we are still young.

We feel we are fair with stability within the Board. We have a reputation for treating players well and of honouring our commitments. However, we are not big spenders, we look after our resources and we want players who are ambitious and not merely motivated by money.

I used to have a golden rule, if players mentioned money before I did, I often changed my mind.
