

ANDY WILLIAMS . . . resigned reluctantly but hopes to stay in football.

'Unfinished job'

THIS is the statement Andy Williams issued on Saturday.

"I have today resigned my post as team manager. The club has taken the decision to remove Nick Beach from the payroll for economic reasons.

"Nick has produced three players — Gary Lester, Steve Smith and Ian Powles — as well as being involved in many less productive enquiries.

"These players have in my opinion, justified the employment of a scout. The club feels otherwise and I am unable to accept their decision.

"I am resigning reluctantly and after much thought. When I came to Wycombe I felt the team needed rebuilding and I am sorry to leave before completing the task. I wish the club and supporters a successful future."
