

The new gates at the players entrance at Loakes Park can also be used to lean while spectating in the rain.

Improvements at Loakes Park

WHEN Wycombe Wanderers' application to join the Football League was refused back in May, the league's three man delegation listed numerous safety improvements that needed to be made to Loakes Park.

Slowly but surely the Wanderers are carrying out some minor improvements. During the close season, the terracing at the hospital end was fenced off from the top enclosure, while Saturday's match against Barking revealed a further change.

The club have now erected gates at the entrance to the dressing rooms, which now allow players free access on and off the field.

Some of the major projects — such as toilet facilities at the hospital end — would require major expenditure, much of that concerning the drainage.

In any case fans will be glad to know that something is being done to bring the ground up to standard.