

Wanderers need cup boost

FOLLOWING two defeats in a row, Wycombe Wanderers must lift themselves for their visit to Slough Town in the third round of the Hitachi Isthmian League Cup at Wexham Park tonight (Tuesday).

Considering those defeats followed a 21 match unbeaten run, there could be a slight dent in Wycombe's confidence, although they will be comforted by their previous results at Slough this season.

On the first day of the season they won 3-1 in the Dylon Charity Shield, and then drew 3-3 in the league, when only a late Slough goal denied them victory.

It will be interesting to see whether Mike Keen persists with George Borg in mid-field, where he palpably failed to influence events on Saturday.

The manager has been unhappy with Borg's performances at left back, and it might be better to leave him out altogether and recall Paul West or Andy Hunt, neither of whom let the side down before being left out.

come back from abroad while defender Eric Young is still injured.

If a season of promise is not suddenly to turn sour on them, Wycombe must rediscover their scoring touch and move into the last eight.

The winners will be away to either Carshalton or Bishop's Stortford, who are playing on the same night.

Evans scores

Slough include in their ranks former Wanderers forward Dylan Evans, who joined from trouble-torn Hillingdon last month.

Indeed Evans was one of the scorers in Slough's 4-2 victory at Staines on Saturday. Other marksmen were Steve Norman and Dave Russell, while the remaining score was an own goal.

Still captaining the side is another former Wycombe man Steve Hardwick, the effect of whose recent suspension was curtailed by the winter weather. He missed only one match as a result.

Slough, managed by Terry Reardon, will be without their two coloured stars. Striker Eggie James has only just
