

JOCK SHEPPARD
... not interested

Groundsman needed

IAN Sanderson, full-time groundsman at Loakes Park since November, will leave Wycombe Wanderers at the end of the season to take up a job with the local council.

Sanderson, member of the groundstaff at Bisham Abbey for eight years, was appointed in controversial circumstances in November following the sudden departure of long serving Jock Sheppard.

Sheppard was offered an early retirement and the freedom of Loakes Park by the club. Sanderson, who had been helping him in the early stages of the season, then took over on his own.

Wycombe have now advertised for 'an experienced groundsman'. But Sheppard has already indicated that he is not willing to go back to his old duties.

Since his departure from Loakes Park, he has acquired numerous gardening jobs around the area plus the chance to do some french polishing, which was his former trade.