Mead goes to Sutton

KEITH Mead, dismissed from his job as Wycombe Wanderers reserve team manager at the end of the season, has joined fellow Isthmian League club Sutton United.

Mead, released from the post because the Blues wanted somebody local, has gone to the Gander Green Lane club purely as a player. He will not help to look after any side.

A Sutton spokesman said: "He's training with us at present with the intention of playing. We'll have to see how he shapes for he could be used in the first team."

Meanwhile his successor Tim Anning and the rest of the management team are preparing for the start of the new season, which is less than a month away.

The first serious friendly is against Southern League side Dorchester Town at Loakes Park on Saturday August 14. Then on Tuesday August 17, they travel to Isthmian Division One side Metropolitan Police who just missed out on promotion last season.

Likely to be in the Met Police side for that match is Chris Way, the Blues' deputy goalkeeper last season, who has joined the force.

Another member of Wycombe's reserve side Tim Lee, meanwhile, is training this week with Norwich City. This will be the Canaries' second look at the 19 year old son of the Wycombe chairman.
