

Birdseye to take over

PAUL Birdseye, the former Wycombe Wanderers captain, is their new commercial manager. He takes over next month from Mike Phillips, appointed to a similar position at Oxford United.

Birdseye, who played at Loakes Park for 11 years until leaving last season, is giving up his job with a Marlow estate agents to take up this full-time appointment.

"I didn't see myself selling houses until my old age. This is an opportunity to break away and become actively involved in sport again, this time on the administration side."

Birdseye, 33, whose main priority will be the club's highly successful lottery added: "It's all about public relations, and I have an advantage being local. I know a lot of people."

PAUL BIRDSEYE
... back in sport