

Loss of three good men

ABOUT Wycombe Wanderers decision to axe the Reserves, it is not a case of "we can't afford to run the team."

In my mind it is more a case of "can we afford to lose three good club men, namely manager Tim Anning, physio Fred Edwards and fixture secretary Dennis Hobbs.?

Sports Mail

Some teams like Adlestone with one man acting as manager, spongemanager and general factotum would give their right arm to have such a team at their club.

I hope that those names above will take their services en bloc somewhere, where their dedication and experience will be appreciated, as there is no room for sentiment at Wycombe Wanderers.

Name and address supplied.

Whatever next, Mr Lee?

A team made up of current and former members of the very successful (and entertaining) Wycombe Reserves side. A team that would hold its own against most Isthmian League Premier Division sides and not a sign of 'padding' — except round Paul Griffiths' midriff!

My sympathy to Tim Anning and the hundreds of people who have appreciated his efforts. Whatever next Mr Lee?
