

Call for new blood at Loakes Park . . .

THE performances of Wycombe Wanderers lately have been both lethargic and lacklustre.

Mr Bence's idea to play players out of position at Wealdstone proved a total disaster. The Cup games against Burton showed no fighting spirit or guts.

In every MIDWEEK and Bucks Free Press the manager states 'We must be patient', 'We are learning all the time.' I don't agree with his philosophy.

There are players in the camp who will not achieve the standard required. It has been evident these last five or six matches that a midfield dynamo is required and a talented forward.

I would like to think, that these positions are filled as soon as possible.

Instead of both managers and assistant watching Wycombe every week they should be taking it in turn to go out and do some scouting to achieve new talent which is desperately needed.

Every team this season we have played have included in their line-up ex-professionals with League experience. It certainly shows.

With the knowledge that Declan Link is on his way, the situation will escalate unless something is done quickly.

The chairman and his committee appear to enjoy their weekly coach trips, jorjriding at the club's expense.

Cannot they see the situation is deteriorating in front of their eyes.

As a supporter I cannot pull any power.

But Mr Lee and his entourage surely can do something to rectify the situation.

So come on Mr Lee and start putting your hand in your pocket for much needed new blood.

But would that be the answer?

I READ with interest the recent letters regarding Wycombe Wanderers this season.

While not wishing to involve myself in a slanging match, I feel I must take Mr Taylor up on one or two points.

Firstly, he criticises the signings of the Wokingham trio.

I bet at the time he was delighted with the news.

For could anyone seriously see that they would perform below their normal level?

Remember, Des McMahon was in the England non-league squad.

Also Sean Price has had a lot of injuries and illness.

Mr Taylor advocates unloading six players, yet suggests replacing them with three!

This would rather reduce the squad, which is not particularly large anyway.

Also, where does he suggest Wycombe get the class players from.

Perhaps he would like to scout for the club himself.

Spending money to get so-called better players doesn't always bring success (look at Maidstone this season).

Lastly, he would like a reply from the club.

Why doesn't he go to the ground on Thursday nights (as Mr Bence suggests often in his programme notes).

Then he can ask the manager himself.

In closing, I do agree with Mr Taylor about running a youth team.
