

Bunting comes of age against Blues

EIGHTEEN-year-old Wycombe lad Trevor Bunting finally realised a dream on Saturday when he produced a fabulous display of goalkeeping in front of a big crowd at Loakes Park.

Unfortunately for Wycombe he did it in the colours of their arch rivals and championship contenders Slough.

The son of a former Wanderers keeper, Bunting had been determined to carry on the family tradition and capture the number one jersey.

But after several seasons as Gary Lester's understudy, the youngster decided he could wait no longer for first team action and in December made the short trip to join Alan Davies' squad at Wexham Park Stadium.

On Saturday, he gave the 2,140 fans a glimpse of just what Wycombe may have missed as he kept Blues' formidable forward line at bay with some first-class saves.

True, it was a below par display from the runaway Vauxhall-Opel League Premier leaders. But they had enough chances to bury the Rebels in the second half.

After recovering from the shock of conceding a goal in 10 minutes, they hit back through Jason Seacole in 26 minutes.

Then 17 minutes from time came Bunting's big moment. Noel Ashford sent substitute Mark Dawber clean away. The little winger should have scored but Bunting stood his ground magnificently and blocked the shot to the utter frustration of his former clubmates.
