FORMER Wycombe Wanderers manager Alan Gane spoke this week of his sadness at leaving the club after 20 months as team boss.

Alan, who quit after Wycombe's defeat against Chelsea last Friday, said he would miss everything about the club but especially the fans and the players.

He refused to give any specific reason for his decision to leave but said it was the culmination of things which had been building up over the months.

"I have very mixed feelings about leaving, I am angry, disappointed and sad," he said.

At present the 37-year-old ex-manager has no firm career plans but says he hopes to stay in football.
