

NEW BLUES BOSS QUIT

Manager resigns after one day

By RUTH PAYNE

WYCOMBE Wanderers approach the season in turmoil and disarray. With just eight days remaining before they kick off in the GMVC league they have no manager and their best player Noel Ashford is threatening to leave.

Because of the uncertainty many of the players have yet to sign league registration forms. Unless this is sorted out quickly it could leave Wycombe without some of their players for the start of the season.

Wycombe's new PR man Alan Parry confirmed on Tuesday that a new manager has been selected but had since changed his mind.

He declined to name the man involved, but he is believed to have been former Blues boss Paul Bence who resigned in 1986.

He accepted the new job, but quit after only one day.

One of the big worries for Blues fans is the situation regarding Noel Ashford, who is thought to have had talks with Bence.

Noel is unhappy that the club have not signed any big name players during the closed season and confirmed on Friday that he had put in a transfer request. But his decision is not yet final.

The Blues drew 2-2 with Kingstonian on Tuesday night, with goals from Andy Graham and Mark West.

A new face expected at Loakes Park is Rowan Dodds, formerly of Slough and Windsor and Eton.
