

Suddaby settles in at Wycombe

EX-BLACKPOOL skipper Peter Suddaby is easing himself into his new job as Wycombe Wanderers manager.

The 39-year-old Maths teacher from Uxbridge will be hoping to come up with the winning formula for Blues in the GM Vauxhall Conference this season.

But he is not rushing into things.

"I am still taking stock," said Suddaby who made over 250 first team appearances for Blackpool during the 1970s. "It will take some time for me to assess the capabilities of each player."

Suddaby played for Wycombe Wanderers while still a student at Oxford University before graduating to First and Second Division football with Blackpool.

After nine years there he moved to Brighton and then Wimbledon.

He took up teaching when a back injury ended his career but he has had coaching experience at Brighton with Alan Mullery and with Spurs Under 15 side.

"This is a real challenge for me," added Suddaby who is making his first venture into management. "I want to be able to make my own decisions

"There is no reason why Wycombe cannot follow Wimbledon's example and my ambition is to get the club into the Football League."
