

Mystery man takes charge of the Blues

JIM who? That was the question on most people's lips after the announcement that Jim Kelman formerly of Maidenhead Utd had been appointed Wycombe Wanderers new manager.

Many expressed doubt whether Kelman who has never managed a team higher than Isthmian League Division Two could lead Wycombe out of the doldrums and on to better things.

However a dazzling display by Wycombe in a 5-3 win over Cheltenham on Saturday has at least given him some time to settle in.

Kelman said: "Obviously first I must get to the know the players so I have called extra training sessions on Wednesdays to enable me to do that. A couple of players have asked to leave the club but before anything happens I must speak to them and assess the situation."

Tomorrow (Saturday) the Blues travel to Didcot Town for a Berks and Bucks Cup match, kick off 2pm.

Missing from the side will be Graham Westley who has undergone an exploratory knee operation during the past week.
