

BATH TIME FOR THE BLUES

ON TARGET: Mark Boyland

GOALS galore came from Wycombe this week. They waltzed three past Welling and then fired four more past Dagenham.

And as the sky-high squad lace their boots for tomorrow's Conference clash at Bath, boss Jim Kelman will tell them: "Three points there could end our fears for the season."

But Kelman warned: "We'll have to snuff out their danger man John Freeguard. He's an excellent centre forward and he's being watched by Chris Nicholl of Southampton."

Three points tomorrow would lift Blues above the magical 40 mark and Kelman believes a haul like that would guarantee they start next season in the Conference.

New boy Adrian Mann thrilled the Loakes Park crowd against Welling. He capped a fine performance with two goals and laid on the third.

Mann's quicksilver speed and close control gave an indication

One more win and we could be safe says boss Kelman of his class from the start but it took nearly half an hour before the former Newport County player was on the scoresheet.

He swerved inside from the right hand edge of the penalty box and jinked past two defenders before slotting a shot past the Welling 'keeper.

Mann was involved in Wycombe's second. He appeared on the left wing this time and turned his marker inside out before lifting a perfect cross to Nigel Taylor.

Taylor could not bury the ball but Mark

Boyland was on hand to supply the finishing touch from the six-yard box.

Wycombe showed a hint of their early season frailty when substitute Terry Robbins seized on a mistake and scored.

With the score at 2-1 the game might have swung back in Welling's favour but Mann sensed the moment and struck again.

Substitute Brian Greenaway raced down the right flank and found Boyland in the danger zone. The ball finally fell to Mann who walked it round the 'keeper.

Hat-trick

On Tuesday night Wycombe hammered Dagenham 4-1 in the Capital League.

Mark West scooped a hat-trick as Wycombe ran riot and Andy Graham also found the net.

Delighted Jim Kelman said: "I think that secures our position at the top of the Capital League. But we'll be concentrating on Saturday's game now."

"Bath are third from bottom but we can't afford to be complacent — I'll be fielding the strongest side I can."
