

Loadsamoney!

■ Money-spinner: Wycombe manager Jim Kelman with future stars Andrew Hamill (left) and Darren Simpson.

Wycombe Wanderers are hoping to succeed where Wycombe Judo Centre failed and make a success of their new money-spinning project 'Bucks Superloot'.

The scheme, launched today, costs 50p per week for the chance to reap some of the £25,000 prize money on offer.

A similar effort was attempted by the Judo Centre when they first opened but flopped because of lack of support.

Blues commercial manager Allan Robson, however, believes SuperLoot will take off in the area and already has the backing of the National Federation of Retail Newspapers.

The project will be run on a parallel with Southampton FC's SuperLoot and is expected to considerably swell Wanderers bank account. That is good news for manager Jim Kelman who will have no financial restrictions in his bid to build a side capable of claiming Football League status.

Contact Allan Robson at the promotions office on HW 26567 for further details.