

Blues inspired by Gascoigne

WYCOMBE Wanderers will be hoping to produce Paul Gascoigne like-form in the coming season as they don a brand new outfit.

The stylish new blue and white quartered shirts are made by official kit sponsors Brooks Sports Limited, the company which has styled Gazza's boots for the past two years.

Brooks, noted for their technical developments in the market of running shoes, spilled over into football products via Gascoigne.

Promotions Manager Jamie Smith said: "The Managing Director, Mr Mel Batty, had the foresight to sign Paul up two years ago, just before he left Newcastle, and now he has become the hottest property in football.

"We hope the same could happen with Wycombe Wanderers."

Verco will continue to lend their name and support via the shirt fronts, while an away kit is also planned by Brooks. The deal with Wycombe is for three years.

"The start of the new season at a new ground is an excellent time to start," Smith continued. "We see Wycombe as potentially capable of competing at full league status."
