

Wanderers should have listened to us

AMIDST all the recriminations and accusations regarding the ticket allocation for the Wycombe v Peterborough tie, it was astonishing to read of the cross remarks of Brian Lee in last week's BFP.

Referring to the difficulties in ensuring a fair distribution of tickets, he is reported to have said "wouldn't it be nice to have the same capacity in 1990 as in 1973."

Had the board of directors taken the trouble to listen to the views of supporters (which they themselves had invited) before finalising arrangements for the development of Adams Park, then we should have found ourselves with a ground capable of accommodating everybody wishing to attend the game.

I shudder to think how many regular supporters would find themselves without a ticket, should the club ever draw an Arsenal or a Liverpool at home.

Although I appreciate it is now too late to rectify the situation re the capacity, Mr Lee's resignation from the board would be preferable to his smug complacency and total disregard for the people who matter most.
