

Champions meet to honour Durham

Adams Park round-up

WYCOMBE manager Martin O'Neill is promising a feast of entertainment for tonight's Championship Shield game against old-rivals Barnet at Adams Park (ko 7.30pm).

The annual match is the non-league equivalent of the Charity Shield, played between the Conference and Trophy winners for the JC Thompson Trophy.

The proceeds this year will go to the fund set up in memory of Kevin Durham — the Barnet and ex-Wanderers midfielder who tragically died of a heart attack this summer.

Both teams are currently flying high in their respective leagues and Barnet have been giving their fans a goal feast, the highlight being last Wednesday's 6-0 thrashing of Lincoln.

"We want to win it," said O'Neill, "and Barry Fry (the Barnet manager) always wants to win. This will be a game for the people."

The Wycombe boss will be taking the opportunity of a gap in the Wanderers' Conference programme to give the rest of his squad a game.

All will make an appearance either tonight, in the Capital League game at Aldershot tomorrow or in the home friendly against Sutton United (ko 3pm) on Saturday.

New-signing Gavin Covington is hoping to make his return at some point during the week, although his injury is still bothering him slightly.

● BARNET'S 1-1 draw at Northampton on Saturday, which kept them in third place in the Fourth Division, brought back memories of Durham's FA Cup winner there last season.

The Northampton players organised a collection in honour of Durham, and proceeds will be presented to Alan Bates, the chairman of the Kevin Durham trustfund, in the lobby of the Vere Suite after tonight's game.
