

In off the post

Dear Sport,

IN reply to recent letters in your sports column regarding certain Wycombe Wanderers supporters complaining about lack of vocal support, they certainly don't go regularly to away games.

For instance, at Bath last Saturday the Wanderers supporters were terrific and what happens? Scott and West played as if they had had "a night on the tiles". Neither looked 100 per cent fit, in which case they shouldn't have been selected.

And this has been the case over the past half dozen games. Westy doesn't seem to have the heart like last season and Scotty gives the impression of sleep-walking with the same pace throughout the game, which rival defences soon work out.

What is urgently required is competition which might stimulate them into action. Also the midfield without Stapleton is pathetic.

With two or three new players with track records I am certain we can overcome the Colchester threat.
