

IN OFF THE POST

Dear Sport,

DO Wycombe Wanderers have a small number of reincarnated Jekyll and Hydes amongst their supporters?

The day of the Colchester home game, the valley terrace 'choir' brigade could stand with heads held high, under provocation and attack from a small number of Colchester fans. Their behaviour was exemplary.

I wish today my family and I could be proud to be called Blues supporters. While Farnborough's goal keeper was on the pitch in some degree of agony, some members of the choir showed their other face.

That of an insensitive, loud-mouthed rabble. Their behaviour was uncalled for and nothing short of disgusting. The Wanderers don't need that kind of support from a small minority, they need the support you in the choir normally give, encouragement and belief that our team — the Blues — can, and will, make it to Division Four.

I'm sure the majority of our supporters send our best wishes for a speedy recovery, and our apologies for the minority, to John Power.

Dear Sport,

DO some Wycombe Wanderers fans — as they call themselves — ever stop moaning?

First of all they moan at Paul Hyde because he makes a couple of mistakes. Then at Mark West and Keith Scott.

Scott and West work very hard and some people expect them to score every time. If those fans can do any better, why don't they join the team?

Every single player, even in the First Division, is sometimes off-form. After seeing a First Division match on television, some fans expect Wycombe to play like that. It's not as if Wycombe haven't won anything.

If any of the players are off-form, those fans should support them and help them get back to their best. This will help much more than criticising will.

Dear Sport,

I WORK in a large factory in Chesham where football is the main topic.

We were all upset George Borg got the sack, and now all the good players are leaving the club. One of our younger workers said the Chesham directors were arguing with your Free Press reporter on Saturday. That's disgraceful.

The foreman told me to write a letter on behalf of all of us. The Bucks Free Press is the only true voice of local football.

Dear Sport,

JUST a line to say please don't stop your excellent reports on Chesham United, after the directors tried to stop you doing your job on Saturday.

Remember the Alamo!
