Former Liverpool player Mark Lawrenson shows his class against Kintbury on Wednesday

FORMER Liverpool star Mark Lawrenson made his home debut for Chesham in Wednesday night's friendly at Meadow Park.

Lawrenson's previous appearances for Chesham had been restricted to a pre-season friendly at Beaconsfield, where he sustained a calf injury.

Now Lawrenson, who has regained his fitness, is raring to go and is expected to play in the home FA Cup 3rd round qualifying tie against Berkhamsted tomorrow (ko 3pm).

This match has generated considerable media interest, mainly because of Lawrenson's likely appearance.

Production teams from Grandstand's Football Focus and BBC2's Standing Room Only are expected to attend.

Against Kintbury, United took the lead in the 12th minute when Michael Banton headed in at the near post after fine work down the right flank by Barry Rake.

Rake then extended Chesham's lead on 55 minutes. He shot clinically from the edge of the box after Lawrenson had touched on a throw-in.

The Generals were 3-0 ahead when Rake fired home from an acute angle on 64 minutes.
