

George shows he is a happy Wanderer

GEORGE Burrage, 64, of Mount Close, High Wycombe wrote this clean song for the competition. It should be sung to the tune of The Happy Wanderer:

We are the Wycombe Wanderers, supporters of our team,
We like to sing at every game and keep the words so clean,
Tra la lee, tra la la, we keep the words so clean.

We think that refs are very nice men and the linesmen too,
If they give our team off-side, we never shout boo boo,
Tra la lee, tra la la, we never shout boo boo.

When other teams come to play we hope they'll like our sound,
And hope they'll accept our apology that we haven't a training ground,
Tra la lee, tra la la, we haven't a training ground.

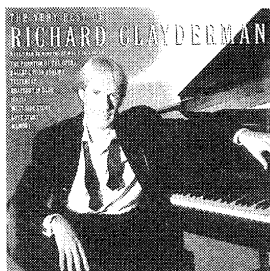

We think we should be in the League and this season will prove us right,
We might even win the cup and Top Of The Pops on Thursday night,
Tra la lee, tra la la, Top Of The Pops on Thursday night.

Backchat

Backchat's contest has got you singing the Blues

Backchat's first prize

GET your earplugs on, folks. It's time to sing along with Backchat to honour the entries that have flooded into to my Wycombe Wanderers' song contest.

Readers inundated me with ditties after I appealed to fans to come up with a new clean chant for the Adams Park heroes.

The competition was sparked when police banned Blues fans from singing blue songs.

Manager Martin O'Neill joined forces with Backchat to appeal for soccer songs you can safely croon to your granny.

Now here's a selection of the best and worst (I'll leave you to judge which is which).

The contest, to be judged by Martin, is still open.

The winner will get a great Backchat prize – a compact disc of the album The Very Best of Richard Clayderman.

● Entries should be sent to Backchat, Bucks Free Press Midweek, Gomm Road, High Wycombe, HP13 7DW. Or phone me on (0494) 521212.

Di's ditty could hit the high notes

DIANE Morris, of The Pastures, Downley, dreamt up this to the tune of The Happy Wanderer:

We love to come to Adams Park

To watch our favourite team

Their name is Wycombe Wanderers

The best there's ever been

Up the Blues

Up the Blues

Up the Blues

Up the Blo oo oo oo oo oos

Up the Blues

Up the Blues

The best there's ever been.

Christine is Martin fan

CHRISTINE Hobbs, of Southfield Road, Flackwell Heath, came up with this flowering lyric to the tune of Daisy Daisy:

Martin, Martin, give us a wave please do

We love Wycombe twice as much as you

We'll shout at the top of our voices

To cheer on the Boys in Blue

And you'll be proud As we shout out loud To see all the talent on view.

Mystery lyricist's tune keeps the fans in step

A MYSTERY lyricist sent this to me, to be sung along to the words of When Johnny Comes Marching Home. Either the writer wishes to remain anonymous, or the address magically vanished. For the following words on blue paper were all I was handed: The Boys in Blue will entertain you

Hurrah, hurrah
The goals they score will make you roar
Hurrah, hurrah
So give them a shout as they run out
Let them know their fans are about
You know who we mean – Wycombe Wanderers
The team
Hurrah, hurrah.

David is keen to keep chants clean

OTHER readers have sent me in suggestions – all clean, I hasten to add.

David McClellan, of Wellfield, Hazlemere, says we could find a suitable chant for Wanderers simply by substituting the obscene words in current songs for clean ones.

He explains you could chant "Go away, West Brom," instead of accompanying the words West Brom with the normal expletive.

It's a great idea, but somehow I can't imagine the fans singing: "He shot, he missed, he must be very tired."
