Parry's tune is a prize winner

HERE is Alan Parry's version of The Wanderer, the song that's banned by Michael Jackson:

We've got the kind of team that'll always be around
We've got the kind of fans who will sing the Wycombe sound
They love us and they cheer us 'cos to them we're all the same
They're always there to watch us, in each and every game

'Cos we're the Wanderers, The Wycombe Wanderers
We wander round and round and round

We've got stars on the left and stars on the right
We've got stars in the middle who are shining very bright
And every time they ask us, which team we love the best
We show 'em all our shirts and it says WYCOMBE on the chest
'Cos we're the Wanderers, the Wycombe Wanderers
We wander round and round and round

Oh we go from town to town with our blue shirt on our chest
We're as happy as a clown
We may not always win, but we always do our best

Yes they'll travel anywhere to support their favourite team
Our fans are something special, they're the best there's ever been
They cheer us every time we win and even if we lose
They're happy just to share in all the magic that's The Blues
'Cos we're the Wanderers, the Wycombe Wanderers
We wander round and round and round

Oh we go from town to town with our blue shirt on our chest
We're as happy as a clown
We may not always win, but we always do our best

We've got the kind of team that'll always be around
We've got the kind of fans who will sing the Wycombe sound
The love us and they cheer us 'cos to them we're all the same
They're always there to watch us, in each and every game
'Cos we're the Wanderers, the Wycombe Wanderers
We wander round and round and round

Wanderer parody cleans the Blues

SOCCKER commentator Alan Parry has scooped the first prize of a Richard Clayderman compact disc after winning my Wycombe Wanderers' song contest.

Alan, a Blues director, was victorious with his version of the classic, The Wanderer.

Readers will recall that heaps of songwriters entered the competition to find a clean song after police banned Wycombe fans from singing dirty ditties.

I was bombarded with lyrics and tapes, which I duly sent to Wanderers boss Martin O'Neill to judge.

Martin spent a whole afternoon last week musing over the music, before asking me to make a final decision.

He said it was unfair of him to judge due to Parry's involvement.

A quick poll around the office proved that Parry's was the most popular entry.

His piece has actually been recorded by the Wanderers team.

But the song's owner, superstar Michael Jackson, has banned it from being released because he doesn't like parodies.

I aim to continue my campaign to force Jacko to relent.

Alan's comment on winning a Richard Clayderman compact disc was: "I would say it's marginally more acceptable than a Michael Jackson compact disc.

"I have to point out that my interest in pop music ended around 1969."
