

We are on for the double

HOW quickly we have got used to victory chants at Adams Park, and how sweet it is to savour triumph after triumph with wonderful Wycombe Wanderers.

We take our hats off to Martin O'Neill and his Blue Army after they swept past Sutton United for a second Wembley date in three seasons.

The celebrations could be doubled after tonight's match at Slough, when victory will make the championship of the Conference, and a passport to the Football League, nigh on a certainty.

The most delightful aspect of all this success is that the team's flowing football has united the town.

May 11 1991, the day of Blues' last FA Trophy win, was a special day in the town's history. More than 20,000 people made the pilgrimage from Buckinghamshire to the famous twin towers.

Now we have another outing and what is the betting even more of us will be walking up Wembley Way on Sunday May 9.

It will be another magnificent occasion, one that will give us a pride in the town, and its most famous football side.

The team has shown tremendous spirit during a turbulent season in which injuries have dogged them.

Picking up the double, the league and the Trophy, would be a fitting tribute to the club's finest hour.
