

Martin, Martin give us a smile

Martin O'Neill is down in the dugout

MIDWEEK is today launching a Cheer Up Martin O'Neill campaign to try to put a smile back on the face of the Wycombe Wanderers manager.

His miserable mood follows a run of defeats which has led to a sulk of silence. Saturday's away victory has failed to rid him of the blues.

Midweek is calling on fans to bombard us with letters, poems, songs, chocolates, flowers and other gifts, which we will pass on to Martin.

We believe Martin with a winning smile will lead to a team with winning results – and we hope Midweek readers can make this happen.

So send your message or gift to Midweek, Gomm Road, High Wycombe, Buckinghamshire, HP13 7DW.

Cheer up the Incredible Sulk

TODAY Midweek launches a Cheer Up Martin O'Neill campaign in an attempt to turn the Wycombe manager's frown upside down.

Lately, Martin has been suffering a rather blue spell following a poor run of form. He refuses to talk to this newspaper and his sulk of silence even extends to the club's own telephone hotline.

Despite Wycombe's victory on Saturday, Martin remains miserable and still refuses to talk to us.

So Midweek has decided to take the initiative and make Martin happy, because if Martin isn't happy, how can his team be happy? And if the team isn't happy, can they really be expected to win?

We want our loyal army of readers and fans to send us letters and cards bearing the Cheer Up, Martin message. We will print the best letters, poems and songs of praise and then pass the bundle on to the manager.

Hopefully this emotional tide of goodwill will have the desired effect and make the manager smile.

So come on and cheer Martin up. Promotion to Division 2 may rest on it.
