

Goodnight from him: Martin O'Neill and sidekick Terry Evans have all the answers

O'Neill puts worlds to rights

WYCOMBE Wanderers' men at the helm faced their public in a question-and-answer session at Adams Park last week.

Manager Martin O'Neill and his right-hand man on the pitch, captain colossus Terry Evans, fielded questions ranging from the club's own prospects to the behaviour of O'Neill's enigmatic former boss Brian Clough.

O'Neill conceded many of ex-Nottingham Forest manager Clough's do appear ludicrous, but added praise from the man himself always struck more of a chord with him than it did from any other football coach.

The thorny issue of attractive football versus league points was also addressed by O'Neill and giant centre half Evans, with an appreciative audience lapping up their pearls of wisdom.

O'Neill also managed to give his side a boost before their home league game against Cardiff City, won 3-1 on Saturday. He put the form of Tony Hemmings under the microscope, much as he had done on the corresponding evening last year.

Twelve months ago, O'Neill's observations were followed by two goals from Hemmings in a league win at home to Crewe Alexandra. This time round, Hemmings came on as substitute and scored Blues' vital second goal against Cardiff.
