

Williams told to pull his finger out

Williams: Dropped

WYCOMBE Wanderers' record signing John Williams was warned in no uncertain terms that he has to buck up his ideas after being dropped for last Sunday's 4-2 defeat at Carlisle.

Williams did not travel up with the team to Brunton Park because his poor form had not warranted a place in the side, said Blues boss Alan Smith.

"I don't think he has done enough for the team." He added: "The mere fact he happens to be the last player in here does not mean he is an automatic choice."

Smith decided to leave out Williams, signed from Coventry in what could eventually be a £150,000 deal because it is linked to appearances, after the winger's performance at Gillingham last week.

The Wycombe manager believes Williams' laid-back attitude has hindered the player's progress, but he remains confident the midfielder is capable of settling down.

Williams knuckled down to some hard graft in the reserves on Wednesday night, but Blues were beaten 2-0 by Cambridge United in only their second Capital League defeat of the season.
