WYCOMBE Wanderers have signed two major sponsorship deals which will provide important support as they bid for the top flight.

The Blues clinched the deals last week during a four day forge for continued belief in their push for First Division and Premiership status.

And they found that belief was strong in long-time official club sponsors Verco and now sportswear giants Mizuno who will now supply team kit.

Blues Chairman Ivor Beeks shook on the new three-year deal with Verco Managing Director Roger Vere and Director Derek Vere.

Mr Vere said: "Verco are particularly pleased that Wycombe Wanderers success has been eagerly followed by the company's customers throughout the UK.

"This association has resulted in additional business for VERCO and greater awareness of the company's products."

Mizuno have become the Blues official kit supplier for their next two seasons.

The Blues join sporting stars like Olympic gold medallist hurdler Sally Gunnell, England football captain David Platt and New Zealand's All Blacks who are all sponsored by the company.

Mr Beeks said: "Mizuno is a major international brand in the sports world and we are very excited at the prospect of working with the Mizuno Corporation in developing quality replicas and sportswear for our customers."

● If, by printing prior to the end of an embargo last week news of the Mizuno deal, we caused embarrassment to Wycombe Wanderers or their sponsors, we apologise.
