

Wilkins out of Adams Park picture

RAY Wilkins will not be returning to Adams Park to play for the Blues.

Wanderers boss Alan Smith confirmed that the former Manchester United and AC Milan player's appearance at Adams Park more than a week ago was a one-off.

Smith was speaking at a panel evening organised by Wycombe

Wanderers Supporters Club last Thursday.

Wilkins pulled on a Wanderers shirt after being approached by Smith two days after he quit his player-manager job at Queens Park Rangers.

■ Tickets are still available for Wednesday night's second-round

Coca-Cola Cup clash with Nottingham Forest.

The first-leg match will kick off at Forest's City Ground at 7.45pm.

Tickets for the away game, and the return encounter at Adams Park next Tuesday, are available from the commercial offices at the club or Wanderers in Town in the Octagon.

Parking ban gives residents the blues

RESIDENT Mark Bone was fined £20 for parking outside his own house on Saturday – because Wycombe Wanderers were playing at home.

Neighbours are furious they are being prohibited from parking outside their own homes on matchdays as part of a plan to crack down on illegal parking by Blues fans close to Adams Park.

Under Buckinghamshire County Council guidelines, several residential roads in the Sands area of High Wycombe become no-parking zones when Wycombe play at home. Residents who do not have enough space to park in their own drives now face being fined time and time again this season.

Brenda Bone, Mark's mum, who lives in Carisbrooke Avenue, said: "It would be annoying if this was a one-off. But it's going to happen again and again. It's ridiculous."

A meeting with police, who enforce the ban, was due to take place last night. The county council said other neighbours had called for the restrictions.
