

Saltergate brings back Bald Eagle memories

EIGHT points from the last five games puts us on schedule for John Gregory's 53 point survival total.

The results of three of our recent matches have been as I predicted except that the away draw I predicted came at Brentford instead of Millwall.

I've got the trips to Chesterfield and Gillingham down as a defeat and a draw. So, anything the Blues can do to improve on this will be a real bonus.

Hopefully, Chesterfield will still be dreaming of their semi-final clash with Middlesbrough, allowing us to sneak away with three points before they wake up.

Unfortunately Saltergate and the crooked spire still holds

A VIEW FROM THE STAND

By Ron Barnett

nightmares for me. Last season we were 3-0 down in less than half an hour and I have a vivid memory of the Bald Eagle running for cover at half-time.

It's good to see the club investing in a new young striker, and one who can score too. Looking back at the programme for the Bradford match, I see Mark Stalard was said to be "an instinctive goalscorer who looks to have a very bright future ahead".

Let's hope that is correct. I can't wait to see Read and Stalard operating together up front - hopefully they will be able to capitalise on our ability to create chances.

The club's March Madness offer of a free home kit or shirt, with every white away kit or shirt purchased, finally admits the true value of our current strip. Worthless not priceless!

Mind you, it was selected by the Bald Eagle and has about as much style as his football teams.

I was interested to see the result of the Wycombe Wanderers Dream Team published in the current issue of the WWISC fanzine, The Wanderer.

Whilst I agree with most of the selections, I was very surprised that Bodger Horseman failed to make the side. As a true Blues legend he would have been one of the first names on my team sheet. Maybe Bodger's skills were too far back for most of the fans who voted.

How about a Blue's Nightmare team? Sieb Dykstra and Mark Foran would be popular members - I can't possibly think who we could select as manager!

Talking about old players. Paul Hyde had an interesting debut for Woking against his old club Hayes. The match was abandoned after twenty minutes when a large hole suddenly appeared in the pitch.

Maybe we shouldn't be surprised, after all Paul always reckoned he could make the earth move!