

Off committee, but still behind Blues

I AM sorry to say that this will be my last column for the BFP, as I am leaving the Blues Supporters Committee.

Work commitments mean that I just don't have the time to dedicate myself to the committee as I would want.

So, from next month someone else will be taking over the mantle of writing the Official Lines column in this newspaper, although it is yet to be decided who.

Meanwhile, I'd just like to say what an enjoyable 18 months this has been for me. I wish the committee every success for their future fundraising efforts.

However, no work commitments could ever tear me away from supporting the Blues, and I will still be attending games and cheering on the lads in the best way I know.

Come on you Blues.
