

Suspended Brown out for Argyle

STEVE Brown misses Wanderers' match tonight at crisis-club Plymouth Argyle through suspension. He starts the first of a three game ban after totting up five bookings.

Second-from-bottom Argyle, who once employed Blues boss John Gregory as caretaker manager, have only won once at Home Park this season, but they did notch a rare win at Preston on Saturday.

They are down to just 14 fit players and were granted special permission by the Canadian FA to keep international striker Carlo Corazzin. He was due to fly to Vancouver today for Canada's World Cup game against America on Saturday but the Canadians have accepted Plymouth's plea to allow him to fly out tomorrow.

Midweek's sister paper the Bucks Free Press will be reporting from the terraces as the press box and the main stand are closed. But Plymouth papers are still banned from the ground after a fall-out with chairman Dan McCauley. They have been reporting from a crane above the ground but tonight's bad weather forecast seems set to scupper that.
