

Blues' fate for all to see

WYCOMBE'S destiny is in their own hands as five of their last 13 matches are against there relegation rivals.

Blues also have an easier run-in than their rivals. Only two of Wanderers last 13 matches are against top-six sides while Burnley, Oldham, Lincoln and Macclesfield all have three matches each against the top half dozen.

Here's how they finish.

New seating plans just don't suit

AN INDEPENDENT VIEW

THERE have been many complaints at Adams Park over the last few months, but the most recent complaint reaching WWISC concerns the talk of plans the football club has in wanting to change the Valley End Terrace from home fans to away fans next season.

The club supposedly wishes to maximise its income from away fans and is apparently prepared to uproot the loyal fans who have stood behind the goal at Adams Park since they built it and move them to other areas of the ground.

Many of us have had to cope with having away fans sitting next to us in the Servis Pak stand for big games, because the club chose to seat the Hillbottom end, (despite being told by WWISC and others what the outcome would be), therefore reducing capacity for visiting fans.

The club now seem to be planning to "bite the hand that feeds them", by moving some of the very fans it must rely on week in week out for revenue.

If you are a Valley Terrace season ticket holder or a fan that regularly stands there and you oppose the change then let your views be known now, before it is too late. Either get in touch with the football club direct or through WWISC.

Several of our members are planning to get together to discuss this issue, as they strongly feel that now is the time to show solidarity and quash this idea before it gets off the ground. If you would like to become involved or would like your own thoughts on this issue put to the club, then please call me on (01494) 450622, and I will pass your details on.

● WWISC will be running a coach to Reading on March 20. We have been told that trying to get out of the car park can take up to an hour, so travelling by coach seems by far the best idea!

Simmo shines

MICHAEL Simpson was Wycombe's player of the month in February according to ratings given out by Match Magazine. His reward was being left out for the first match in March, Saturday's draw against Colchester.
