

Wycombe see out the year with a visit to old enemy

WYCOMBE face the old enemy Colchester next Wednesday (ko 7.45pm), just as the Us are running into some good form.

The Essex outfit had been stuck in the relegation zone and even went bottom for a while after 13 games without a win, but a recent good run has seen them climb to the relative safety of seventh-from-bottom.

Blues' frontman Jermaine McSporran will be available for the trip to Colchester as Wanderers finish off the century with the team who, for the last decade at least, they have loved to hate.

McSporran completed his three-match ban on Boxing Day and will give boss Lawrie Sanchez another option up front.

His strike partner Sean Devine was a target of the Colchester management before he opted to join Wycombe.

It is the second season running, since promotion from Division Three, that Colchester have been caught in a relegation battle.

Their championship winning side was broken up at the end of last term by boss Mick Wadsworth who put nine players on free transfers and brought in three expensive signings.

They've since left, along with Wadsworth who joined Newcastle in the summer, but it proved a costly time for the club.

The Us recently re-signed former player, defender Joe Dunne.

He added a new dimension to the Colchester side that beat Luton 3-0 in the league last weekend.
