

Blues aim for top ten result for us today. It takes us to 29 points at the half way stage.

"Now we should look to score more points in the second half of the season than we have in the first. You are looking at 60 points, which is not bad with what we've got. Then we'll look to build the squad in the summer for next season."

A 60-point plus finish could see Blues end the season in the top ten, but is unlikely to be enough for a play-off spot. Last year's play-off cut off was 76 points.

But even a top ten finish would be impressive for the Blues.

Sanchez has a thread-bare squad and no money to spend. His side has been further hit by suspensions and injuries. Four first teamers were out for the Boxing Day clash.

Blues start their new year with striker Andy Baird and midfielder Steve Brown suspended when Wycombe play host to Chesterfield this coming Monday.
