BOSS FACES BAN

LAWRIE Sanchez is facing the prospect of another long touchline ban after being sent off for the second time in 13 months.

He was ordered from the dugout after a flare up with fourth official Janie Frampton during Blues' 2-0 defeat at Bournemouth on Saturday which extended Wycombe's winless run to six games.

But the Blues boss admitted he's more worried about stopping his team's slide down the table, starting with tonight's match at home to Gillingham (ko 7.45pm), than he is about any punishment the FA may dish out.

He said: "We've still got to win two games to be safe from relegation."

following his dismissal at Preston last term, will be reported to the FA again after his altercation with the officials at Dean Court.

He was sent to sit in the stands after mockingly clapping Premiership referee Steve Dunn who intervened in his spat with Frampton, who was ticking him off for stepping outside of his technical area.

But he said: "That's the least of my worries. I've got more important things to worry about, like where am I going to pick a victory up from?"

"I'm worried. If we perform like that too often wins are going to be very hard to come by."

But he was far more upbeat yesterday as leading scorer Sean Devine gave him a massive boost by declaring himself fit for tonight's match against the play-off chasing Gills.

Sanchez said: "It's a big bonus and will give the lads confidence."

It's also done Sanchez good. He was back to his bullish self yesterday.

He said: "I'm 100 per cent certain we'll get the points we need. The Bournemouth performance was a one-off. The Wigan game before it took more out of us than I realised."
