Blues head for their first sellout crowd

FOOTBALL

WYCOMBE Wanderers are heading for their first-ever Adams Park sellout as FA Cup fever sweeps across Bucks.

There are now fewer than 700 tickets left for Saturday's all-ticket fourth round clash at home to Wolves – and the advice from the club is buy today before it is too late.

All the seats have been sold and only terrace tickets and £55 hospitality packages remain.

Wolves sold their allocation of 1,840 tickets within hours of them going on sale and the demand in Wycombe has been just as phenomenal with supporters queuing out of the door both at the ground and at Wanderers in Town, the club shop in the Octagon.

Lines to the telephone booking line have also been jammed and many fans have by-passed the queues by buying on-line at the Wanderers website.

The attendance looks set to beat the record 9,007 gate set in January 1995 for the FA Cup third round visit of West Ham but for segregation reasons it will still fall short of the club's 10,000 capacity.

Club spokesman Alan Hutchinson said: "It's been absolutely brilliant. It's the first time the club has been in the fourth round and it seems that everyone wants to see it."

The club had intended keeping its ticket office open late tomorrow and Thursday but those plans could now be shelved as they don't expect to have any tickets left to sell.

Tickets can be bought from Wanderers in Town, the Adams Park commercial offices, the website www.wycombewanderers.co.uk or on the hotline (01494) 441118. For hospitality tickets call (01494) 538461.
