

Even Lineker couldn't have helped us

WE were all very disappointed to come out of the Chesterfield game with just one point.

I was particularly upset because I felt that my second minute header had crossed the line. I'd have loved it to have counted because it was awful to score the own goal which cost us the points at Huddersfield a week earlier.

A lot has been made about the club's bad luck in the transfer market as the boss looks for a new striker but we know if we'd had Alan Shearer or Gary Lineker up front last week it wouldn't have made any difference because we didn't create any chances.

We didn't play well enough and we didn't get decent balls into the box and the whole team must take responsibility.

We know that if Darren Currie spends 80 per cent of the match in the attacking third of the field we will win games but we've all got to work harder to make sure that he is playing further up the pitch.

On a personal note the Chesterfield result was particularly disappointing for me because I could have joined them a few years ago.

The two clubs had agreed a fee but I just didn't fancy it. Who would want to swap Adams Park for the facilities of Saltergate?

I phoned Chesterfield up and said I wasn't coming. I didn't even get in my car to have a look at them. I didn't want to go.

Although we've only taken one point from the last two games, the lads are as optimistic as ever. We showed against Wrexham just how good we can be when we are on song and I think it is just a bit of fine tuning that is needed to get us firing on all cylinders again.

I think sides like Chesterfield looked at the Wrexham result and our cup run last season and have decided to come here and make sure they give nothing away.

That's why tomorrow's game against Wigan should suit us. They expect to be one of the top teams and they will come out and play against us.

We normally have good games against them but we don't too often come out of them with the points and that is something we've got to put right tomorrow.
