Criticism of boss was unfair

BEING a long standing supporter of Wycombe Wanderers, and having seen our rise from non-league football to one of the most respected clubs in Division Two, I was a little sad to read in last week's BFP three letters all criticising the manager over his lack of signing a top striker.

If they had read the Free Press regularly, they will see he's tried at least four or five times to obtain recognised goalscorers with, up to now, no success – because the clubs have upped the price, or players like Forrester of Northampton Town, asking unrealistic wages.

If I have to criticise any aspect of recent team performances, I feel our set pieces have been a disaster several times in goalscoring positions when the players over the ball seemed to have no idea which one was going to execute the final delivery.

Remember last season? Set pieces were our strongest weapon.
