Watching Blues beats Man Utd

ON Saturday, September 29 I received a kind invitation to accompany a family to Wycombe Wanderers.

My 85 years have covered schoolboy and amateur league as a player and several years living in N20 as an ardent supporter of Tottenham where I saw the best.

Wycombe won the game against Port Vale but that is not my abiding memory. The buildings were impressive, the pitch looked good enough for cricket but it was the atmosphere generated which made a lasting impression on me.

The team colours were everywhere. This was Saturday as it used to be.

In contrast that night I watched on TV Manchester United beat Spurs 5-3. But that was new wine in old bottles and I was a bit sad. We seem to have got a bit lost on the way.

It's now a residential home for me and thank you my host (a member of staff) for taking me to the match. Thank you also to the helpers at the stadium with my wheelchair. I hope to join Wycombe Wanderers again some Saturday, but do not let go of the family ambiance and keep up with the Coca-Cola and chips!
