

Blues on song after magical mystery tour

SATURDAY'S goal-scoring hero Jermaine McSporryan reckons Wanderers' cross country trip helped him and the team relax ahead of their victory at Bristol City.

The team arrived in Bristol late after being held up in motorway jams caused by a siege on the M4. But they then went out and beat the division's second best team with a McSporryan goal.

McSporryan said: "We were late coming here but we took the mickey and took the three points.

"We knew we were going to be late so we didn't bother worrying about it. There was nothing we could do.

"We just relaxed, made fun of our situation and cracked some jokes."

While the tension was mounting among the Bristol players who were kept waiting for them at Ashton Gate, Wanderers were cranking up the humour on their magical mystery tour of the back roads of Wiltshire and Gloucestershire.

Wycombe eventually strolled into Ashton Gate five minutes before the scheduled 3pm start.

They were given extra time to do a warm-up before the match kicked off 35 minutes late.

Now McSporryan, who picked up an ankle injury at the end of the game, reckons Wanderers should repeat the exercise tonight when they travel to Colchester without him tonight.

Saturday's win briefly elevated Wycombe to fifth in the table, but Stoke's draw with Port Vale in Sunday's Potteries derby pushed them back down to sixth.

Well done: Jermaine McSporryan scored his first goal of the season as Wanderers won at Bristol City for the second year running
