

Invincible is out to prove his worth

FORMER Wycombe transfer target Danny Invincible is out to show Lawrie Sanchez that he's worth a lot more than £50,000 tomorrow.

The Wanderers boss bid 50K for the Robins hitman last summer but was told his offer was an insult by the then Swindon boss Andy King.

Invincible told the BFP: "I would like to think I was worth a bit more than that and I'd like to prove it on Saturday."

Invincible is a big admirer of Sanchez after seeing him mastermind Wanderers' run to the FA Cup semi-final, but the move never got past first base. The first the Aussie striker knew about the bid was when he returned to Britain for pre-season training.

He said: "I was back home in Australia when the story blew up. I never even got as far as talking to anyone at Wycombe or Swindon about it."

Last season, Wanderers kept the Wiltshire side in the second division by winning at Bristol Rovers to send the Pirates down instead.

Invincible said: "They did us a huge favour last year. But that's gone now. It's history and we'll be going all out for the points.

"It should be a tremendous game. Wycombe are unbeaten at home and we've got a fantastic away record.

"We're a different side to last season. We've got 12 or 13 new players. Roy Evans and Neil Ruddock have come in as the management team and their top flight experience is rubbing off on us.

"We're more confident now and we're passing the ball around."

Sanchez also chatted to Ruddock about a possible move to Adams Park during the summer before the former Spurs and Liverpool hardman was offered his Swindon role.

Sanchez said: "They're a decent side. Any team that has Roy Evans in charge deserves respect for what he did at Liverpool. But we want to keep our home record going."

For Wycombe, Jermaine McSparran is out but Jason Cousins could return to the bench if he passes a fitness test.
