

Taylor nets a new deal and aims for Division One

WANDERERS keeper Martin Taylor signed a new two-year contract at Adams Park and then set his sights on winning promotion.

The 35-year-old former Derby County glovesman wants to put this season's second half collapse behind him and get on with the business of ending his career on a high note.

He said: "I want to get us into the first division there's no doubt about that. I haven't signed because it's comfy here. I've signed because I want to play in the first division and I think we can get there.

"It's something I still think I can do and something I believe the club can do."

And the two-times Player-of-the-Year backed

Sanchez to lead the club into the promised land.

He said: "We know that in the last 12 or 13 games, we have been in relegation form and that has cost us our chance of promotion this season.

"At the moment we're a mid to top-half club in the second division but Lawrie is definitely the man to take us there.

"I've read some of the things on the internet and I think it is ridiculous that a handful of people are calling for the manager to go.

"When he first came we were dead and buried. He saved us from relegation, took us to a semi-final and each year there has been a gradual improvement.

"Last year, our promotion hopes fell at Christmas. This year it was February and this time it has been a major fall. Each year we are progressing closer to it and I believe we can do it with the manager and the players we have got here.

"We've let ourselves down and the club down over the last couple of months.

"No-one can put their finger on what's gone wrong, but we are as disappointed as the fans and are determined to put it right."

Taylor added: "My desire is as strong as ever. I still enjoy playing football for Wycombe and I want to play for another year after this contract.

"I want to end my career on a high note and that means playing in the first division."
