

New boss for the reserves

WANDERERS boss Lawrie Sanchez has gone back to his old club Wimbledon to appoint Peter Cawley as Blues' new reserve team boss.

The 36-year-old former Colchester, Exeter City, Fulham and Southend defender was a team-mate of Sanchez at Wimbledon and will succeed another ex-Don Terry Gibson as reserve team boss, allowing Gibbo to concentrate solely on first team duties.

Cawley will double as the club's fitness coach as well and Sanchez is delighted with the appointment.

He said: "At this level you need a reserve team manager. Peter Cawley's background is in fitness and he will be able to give us a head start in that department."