

Wanderers return to work

WYCOMBE Wanderers players return to training today just two weeks after the end of the season.

Manager Lawrie Sanchez has called them all back to Adams Park to start on a two-day-a-week summer maintenance programme designed to cut out the traditional injury problems which occur in pre-season training.

Midfielder Steve Brown said: "It's a new idea and something that I'm happy to go along with."

For Brown it will mean that he hasn't stopped since the season finished. He has spent the last two weeks on a coaching course and is now back in training before the second division play-offs have even taken place.
