

Sean shock has got me thinking

STEVE BROWN

VIEW FROM THE STAND

IT was a shock to all the lads when we heard about Exeter City coming in for Sean Devine.

You never want to lose a player of Sean's quality particularly when he's your top scorer but I do understand the club's financial plight.

Sean is one of 12 Wanderers out of contract in the summer and unfortunately I'm a member of that uncertain dozen.

None of us know what the future holds, but as the oldest player at the club I am beginning to make provision for life without football.

I'm really hoping I will be kept on next season because I feel I can still do a good job there and I've certainly still got the enthusiasm for it.

I would love to be kept on but recent headlines have made me accept that it might not happen.

The boss said in the paper that it was time to hand over to youth and that gets you thinking.

If I'm not kept on next season I want to be prepared for it and I've already started making a few plans.

I've started doing some work on the club's official website and I'm at the early stages of talks about having a possible music show on the radio.

As most of you will know, music is a big part of my life and on Sunday I will be DJing down at Time Nightclub in High Wycombe with my team-mate Lewis Cook.

I'm really excited about it. We will be playing R&B, Garage and House tunes and it promises to be a really good night with all the team promising to come down to support us.

It's all for charity and it would be great to see as many Wanderers fans there as possible.

I bought my first decks from Andy Baird and I thought rather than just messing around, I'd go on a DJ-ing course and it's something I really enjoy and hopefully we can give everyone a good night before Christmas.

I'll be a bit nervous but that's how I feel just before a football match. It's like football, once you've done your first good pass you naturally fall into the rhythm.

But I certainly won't let anything detract from my football all the time I've got a contract at Wanderers.

I missed Saturday's win over Port Vale through suspension but I'm hoping to be back in the side tomorrow.

There's a lot of points to be played for over the next few weeks and hopefully Saturday's result will be just what we needed to get the confidence going again and hopefully we can give you the supporters a few wins as Christmas presents.

Happy Christmas and all the best for the New Year.

● Fans can catch Steve DJing at Time Nightclub on Sunday, December 22 from 10pm. Admission is free but a donation to the club's sponsored charities, Nordoff Robins Music Therapy and ECHO (Entertainment organised to help children's hospitals throughout the UK) would be appreciated.
