

Roberts: It's time for me to deliver

Welshman says it's time to be Mr Consistent

WINGER Stuart Roberts returned to the Wanderers side last week for the first time since limping off against Cardiff City in October and declared "Now it's time for me to deliver."

The former Swansea City wideman helped turn the game against Port Vale last Saturday when he came on as half of a double substitution with Sean Devine.

But the former Wales U21 international knows that he needs to turn it on for more than 20 minutes if he is going to justify his £100,000 fee.

He said: "I know I have got to do it every week. I have been a bit in and out since I joined Wycombe and I know I have got to be more consistent."

"It has been stop-start for me since I've been at Wycombe and I'm hoping I can change that now."

"I have one or two good games and then had a couple of disappointing ones. I now need to do it every week and start paying back that transfer fee."

"Wycombe pay me to deliver and I think it is about time I started delivering now."

Roberts' pace and willingness to run at the Vale defence swung the game back in Blues' favour last week just when Wycombe appeared to have run out of ideas.

Boss Lawrie Sanchez said: "I thought Sean and Robbo really changed the game; Sean with his goals and Robbo with his runs."

"That little bit of pace that we have with Robbo causes teams all sorts of problems."

The Welsh U21 international signed from his hometown club Swansea City last October and instantly became a firm favourite with the fans.

He said: "I'm not quite sure what I have done to deserve that. They've only seen little bits of me so far. There's a lot more to come."

And Roberts, who was a regular scorer with the third division Swans, now aims to start hitting the net for the Chairboys.

He said: "I've only scored in pre-season and it is time I put that right."

Roberts, who has just returned from ankle ligament damage, has another target he aims to achieve as well.

His housemate is Blues' teenage centre half Roger Johnson and he hopes they can both become household names in the same side.

He said: "We were working it out the other day and I think the only time we've both been in the starting side together this season was at Sheffield United in the Worthington Cup."
