

Wimbledon legend: Lawrie Sanchez celebrates after making statues of the Liverpool defence in the 1988 FA Cup Final

Sanchez's moment could be set in stone

WANDERERS boss Lawrie Sanchez could be immortalised in stone in Bucks.

His former club Wimbledon is considering building a statue of him outside their proposed new 28,000 all-seater stadium in Milton Keynes.

Sanchez, Vinnie Jones and Dave Beasant are the three players being considered for the honour of marking Wimbledon's controversial relocation from London in style.

The Dons will choose either a bronze statue or a giant embossed plaque of Sanchez heading the winning goal past Liverpool in the 1988 FA Cup final or Dave Beasant's penalty save from John Aldridge in the same game.

The other option being considered is a bronze statue of Vinnie Jones holding Paul Gascoigne by his crown jewels.

Wimbledon fans and the club's board will decide on who the statue will be after and Dons' spokesman Reg Davis admits Sanchez would be a popular choice.

He said: "Sanchez's goal in the Cup

Final is the most famous in the club's history and he will never be forgotten by anyone at Wimbledon."

"There are approximately 150 large public sculptures in Milton Keynes and the concrete cows are the second most famous piece of modern-day sculpture in Europe."
