

.... And Ozzie's left counting the cost

WANDERERS keeper Mark Osborn has slammed Farnborough Town and accused them of putting his career in jeopardy.

He is convinced he will be shown the door by Wycombe in manager Lawrie Sanchez's clearout next month and has pointed the finger of blame firmly at former Boro boss Graham Westley.

Westley signed Ozzie on a season-long loan at the start of the campaign and promised him first team football.

But before the ink was dry on the contract, Westley signed another keeper Tony Pennock, and Osborn has not played a single game for the Nationwide Conference side this season.

He told the BFP: "I wish I hadn't gone there. It has ruined my season and put my whole career in doubt.

"Graham Westley led me on. He's very ambitious but he goes about things in the wrong way.

"I wanted to go there originally but that was when I thought I would be getting first team football.

"I've only played one game in the league cup against Aldershot for them. I would have been better off staying at Wycombe."

Wanderers did try and get Osborn back when it was obvious the deal wasn't working out but Boro would not let him return and Ozzie has been trapped ever since.

Now he fears the worst for his Wycombe contract which expires in the summer.

Since he has gone, Frank Talia has come in and displaced former number one Martin Taylor, pushing Osborn further down the pecking order.

And with youngster Steve Williams currently doing well for the reserves, Osborn does not fancy his chances.

He said: "It doesn't look good for me. It has been a crap season. I haven't been told anything yet but I'm not confident.
